About us

Since 1998, Westmont Metal Manufacturing has been producing quality metal fabrications, components, and weldments for a wide range of clients in the food, chemical, automation, and medical industries.

Our experienced, educated engineering and production staff is highly trained for a variety of manufacturing roles and processes, from single prototypes to large production runs. We produce to the tightest engineering specifications, documenting all the steps of manufacturing, to maintain quality and consistency.

At our 24,000 square-foot facility, we not only make parts, but we record how to make them, and our systems are developed for all kinds of orders. All the work is done locally to ensure quality results, whether the product is big or small.

We are centrally located in Broadview, Illinois, just five minutes south of the Eisenhower Expressway (I-290).
